Minneapolis 3/13/17 – Widespread media reports that Attorney General Jeff Sessions may have lied at his confirmation hearing are factually wrong. This appears due at least partly to a major error by FactCheck.org in their transcript of Sessions’ answers to Sen. Al Franken. A new one minute video by “Candidate-Journalist” Bob “Again” Carney Jr. -- “bobagain” for short -- documents the error. The video is on youtube.com at the “bobagain channel”:

Here is the link to the FactCheck.org report -- a screen shot in the video shows the transcript from a March 2nd report.

<http://www.factcheck.org/2017/03/did-sessions-lie/>

As of March 13th the crucial section of that transcript still reads: “... and I didn’t have — did not have communications with the Russians...”

However, when we talk without a script, we sometimes start to say one thing... then we start over and say something else. As shown in bobagain’s video, that happened at the hearing. Sessions first said: “... and I didn't have..." then he started over and said: "... and I have communications with the Russians."

"Let's be clear" bobagain said in the video – "... and I have... [plays enhanced tape of that phrase as spoken by Sessions] is the opposite of "... did not have... Sessions didn't lie, the reports are wrong," bobagain concluded.

The brief video ends with this statement: "We the People must demand that the 'Mainstream Media' set the record straight. They must retract and correct their false reports of this major story."

Note: the www.bobagain.com website is being updated to include this BREAKING NEWS – a "long form" video version of the just released Part One one minute video version is in production.
